Hero section

H1

Practical thinking for technical companies trying to make the market understand.

Hero body

The Insights section is where I write about the problems technical founders, GTM leaders, partner teams, and executives run into when the product is strong but the story is not yet easy to repeat.

This is not meant to be generic startup advice.

It is for technical companies working through the hard middle ground between what the product can do and what the market, sales team, partners, executives, and buyers can actually understand.

Topics include founder led sales, technical product marketing, product messaging frameworks, partner enablement strategy, demos, executive narrative, and go to market strategy for startups.

Section 1: Start here

Section headline

Start here if your product is strong, but the story is not carrying far enough.

Body copy

A lot of technical companies do not need more generic marketing advice. They need help translating what they built into the pain, urgency, value, and workflow language their buyers actually care about.

These articles are meant to be useful even if you never hire me. The goal is to give technical founders and GTM teams a better way to think about the story, the demo, the partner motion, and the buyer conversation.

Featured post requirement for Pablo

Pablo build note:

Please include a featured post capability on the Insights page. Bob should be able to select or update the featured post without developer help.

Featured post placeholder

Featured post title

How do you turn technical features into business value?

Featured post summary

A practical exercise for taking the features your team is proud of and mapping them to the pains, outcomes, objections, and buyer roles that actually create action.

Section 2: What I write about

Section headline

The main topics

Intro copy

The categories should help visitors find the type of problem they are trying to solve without making them dig through a giant pile of posts.

Category cards

Startup Go to Market

For founders and GTM leaders trying to build a go to market strategy for startups without turning it into theory no one uses.

Example topics:

- What is a go to market strategy for startups?
- How should a B2B SaaS go to market strategy change as the company grows?
- When should a startup bring in outside GTM help?

Founder Led Sales

For companies where the founder can sell the story, but the team cannot repeat it yet.

Example topics:

- When does founder led sales stop scaling?
- How do you move beyond founder led sales?
- What should come after founder led sales?

Technical Product Marketing

For technical products that need clearer market language without losing the technical truth.

Example topics:

- What is technical product marketing?
- How do you explain a technical product simply?
- How do you explain technical value to executives?

Product Messaging

For turning product capabilities into buyer-relevant value.

Example topics:

- What is a product messaging framework?
- How do you turn features into business value?
- Why does feature-led messaging fail?

Partner Enablement

For companies that want partners to understand, trust, and repeat the story.

Example topics:

- What is partner enablement strategy?
- How do you make partner messaging repeatable?
- Why do channel partners struggle to sell technical products?

Demos and Field Conversations

For teams that need demos and customer conversations to create belief, not just prove the product exists.

Example topics:

- How do you stop a demo from becoming a feature tour?

- What makes a technical demo useful to executives?
- How should a demo change by buyer role?

Executive Narrative

For turning technical depth into a story executives, boards, investors, and strategic buyers can follow.

Example topics:

- How do you explain technical value to executives?
- What makes a technical story board-ready?
- How do you connect features to cost, risk, security, agility, and efficiency?

Section 3: Newsletter signup

Section headline

Get practical GTM thinking in your inbox.

Body copy

I send practical writing for technical founders, GTM leaders, and partner teams trying to make complex products easier to understand, sell, demo, and scale.

The goal is not to flood your inbox. It is to give you useful ideas, exercises, and ways of thinking that help you connect technical depth to buyer value.

If your company has built something strong and the market still needs too much help understanding it, this is for you.

Section 4: Recent articles

Section headline

Recent articles

Body copy

Use this section for the most recent blog posts, with category, title, short summary, and publish date.

Pablo build note:

Please make this a normal blog index with filtering or category navigation if practical. It does not need to be overly complex, but it should be easy for Bob to publish posts regularly and have them appear here automatically.

Article card fields

Each article card should support:

- Category
- Title
- Short excerpt
- Date
- Featured image or visual
- Read more link

Section 5: Soft CTA to Production Ready

Section headline

Reading because your product story is not scaling?

Body copy

If the articles here sound painfully familiar, there may be a bigger issue underneath.

Maybe the founder is still needed in too many sales conversations. Maybe the demo is accurate but not persuasive. Maybe partners are interested but not confident. Maybe the product is strong, but the market needs too much translation before the value makes sense.

That is the kind of problem Production Ready is built for.

Production Ready is the Successfulbob framework for technical companies that need to make their GTM as production-ready as their product.

Section 6: Customer Resource Vault

Section headline

Customer Resource Vault

Body copy

The Customer Resource Vault is for clients with access to Successfulbob and Production Ready materials.

It is where customers can find practical templates, exercises, checklists, messaging worksheets, demo planning tools, partner enablement guides, and other working materials that support the ideas covered in the public Insights section.

The public articles are meant to teach useful ideas. The Customer Resource Vault is where customers get the proprietary tools and frameworks to apply them more directly.

Insights questions

FAQ 1

Question

What topics does Successfulbob write about?

Answer

Successfulbob writes about technical GTM, founder led sales, product messaging, partner enablement, demos, executive narrative, and go to market strategy for startups. The common thread is translation: helping technical companies explain what they built in a way buyers, sales teams, partners, and executives can understand and repeat.

FAQ 2

Question

What will I get if I subscribe?

Answer

You will get practical thinking on technical GTM, founder led sales, product messaging, partner enablement, demos, and executive narrative. The goal is to make complex products easier to understand, sell, demo, and scale. It is written for technical founders, GTM leaders, and partner teams that want useful ideas they can actually apply, not generic startup advice.

FAQ 3Question

Who should subscribe?

Answer

The newsletter is for technical founders, GTM leaders, product marketers, sales leaders, partner teams, and executives who are trying to make complex products easier to understand, sell, demo, and scale. It is especially useful if the product is strong but the story still depends too much on the founder or a few internal experts.

FAQ 4Question

What is the Customer Resource Vault?

Answer

The Customer Resource Vault is a gated area for clients with access to Successfulbob and Production Ready materials. It contains proprietary templates, frameworks, worksheets, checklists, and tools that help customers apply the ideas from the public Insights section to their own GTM, messaging, demos, partner enablement, and executive narrative work. The public content is meant to be useful on its own. The vault is for customers who need the working materials behind the process.

FAQ 5Question

Where should I start?

Answer

Start with the featured article: “How do you turn technical features into business value?” It gives a practical way to connect the features your team talks about to the pains, outcomes, roles, and value your buyers actually care about.
